Newton Hires Business Development Specialist to Boost Private Client Team

LONDON, 29 September, 2008 – Newton Investment Management has announced the appointment of Karen Clark as Director of Investment Management for its private client division.

Based in London, Clark will report to Ruth Murphy, Director of Business Development, and will be responsible for business development to private clients and their key intermediaries. Newton Private Investment Management currently manages £8.1 billion on behalf of onshore and offshore private investors, trusts, pension schemes and charities.

Clark has 20 years experience in financial planning and investment management and has held a number of senior positions in the wealth management sector.

Most recently Clark was Director of Private Wealth Management at Mellon Financial Corporation (now The Bank of New York Mellon) in Los Angeles, a position she held since 2004. During this time Clark originated the new investment management and personal trust business. She was also responsible for expanding the group's referral network.

Commenting on her appointment, Murphy said: "Karen's appointment demonstrates our commitment to proactively growing our presence in the private investment management market, particularly developing new offshore markets and enhancing our expertise in dealing with international clients.
